The Wisconsin Senator tore into the Pacific pact with all the forensic fury for which he is famed. The design of the treaty, he declared. is "to secure our cordial co-operation with Japan in her atrocities in China, Siberia and Korea; with Great Britain in her debauchery and robbery of the Chinese, and in her holding India in subjection."

"Let us keep our position of freedom from entangling alliances," he exhorted. "In that position we can follow our own ideals, we can sup-port the cause of justice and con-demn the acts of injustice among nations according to our convictions of right and wrong. Both our honor and our self-interest require that we should maintain ourselves in that position by rejecting this treaty.

Outrages by Japan In Korea Attributed By Watson to Root

Senator Thomas E. Watson of Georgia, opposing the Four-Power Pacific Treaty in the Senate late yesterday, repeated the charge that Elihu Root was the dominating influence behind the drafting of the treaty. Senator Watson said in part:

"Who wrote this treaty." Whose brain conceived it? Whose will power put it through? I am confident that Elihu Root is the man who engineered the whole thing.

"It will be remembered that Charles Edward Russell, who is occasionaally a Socialist, went with Elihu Root to Russia. The Russian armies had been withdrawn tempor-arily from the combat. Soon after Mr. Root arrived and had a conference with Kerensky, those armies were put back into the conflict and that was the main cause of the second revolution which put Kerensky out and put Lenin in. Elihu Root is arraigned now for having been the principal author of the misfortunes of Korea, which misfortunes led to the persecution by Japan of the Churches of Christ in that country. That country has been converted to Christianity. She has thousands of churches, thousand of school houses, 9,000,000 converts. "They have been subject to massacre and torture, and Christ is being again crucified in their persons the Japanese, and it was Elihu Root who made possible that dread-

Lodge Thrown Into Dismay When Cravath Gives Genesis of Treaty

By PHILIP FRANCIS.

It was funny to see Lodge and Underwood go up in the air when Borah sprang the stenographic report of Cravath's speech upon them.

That straight right hand blow caught Lodge right in the pit of his Senatorial stomach. It was a painful shock. Lodge was so astonished that he lost complete command of himself. He was as fussed up as an old hen suddenly shooed off her nest. It was necessary to drop the debate and put on some routine Senatorial business while the elderly gentleman from Massachusetts smoothed his rumpled rhetorical

All that Lodge and Underwood could say was that Cravath had lied. But he didn't. Not in this instance. He told the truth about the genesis of the treaty, though he may have embellished the story with a few bits of color. Being a trusted attorney for the house of Morgan, and a busy pro-British propagandist during the war, Cravath knows very well just what Mr. Balfour was scheming to get from Hughes and Lodge and Underwood-and just what he got and how he got it. There was nothing new in what Cravath said. Plenty of us knew all that he told before he told it. But it was a satisfaction to have this confidential lawyer of the in-ternational bankers and the Brit-

No, Cravath didn't tell a lie. He simply talked out of his turn. He should not have told inside secrets until the job was finished. That's all.

This exposure of the inside workings of British diplomacy and the international bankers has had a disturbing effect upon several Senators who thoroughly dislike and distrust the treaties in their hearts, but who have hushed their misgivings "in the interest of party harmony."

That old stock-in-trade excuse of party bosses has been overworked by whippers in. by the Administration

It is always used to induce mer who want to be faithful to their own instincts of patriotism to do something which they feel they should not do. And there are at least four-and I think six-Republican Senators who don't want to vote for these treaties, but who have so far compromised with their own better judgments and their own better consciences "in the interest of party harmony.' Now, this revelation by one of the chief attorneys of the international bankers and one of the most willing and ardent tools of British propaganda has made it still harder for these Senators to what the Administration and international bankers and British diplomacy want them to do. And every day the surrender of their conscience and their judgment and their country's real in terests becomes more distasteful

Whether these men will vote as their judgments and consciences tell them they should vote, or whether they will yield to the urgency and the pressure of party leadership, I do not pretend to say. But it can be depended upon that they don't want to vote for this treaty, and that this exposure of Cravath's congratulatory speech to his inner audience may cause these reluctant Senators to break out of the Root-Balfour corral and come over to the American side. In which case, good-bye treatyand the devil take you, you ugly, cowardly, un-American thing!

The international bankers were down here the other day with another one of their characteristic propositions.

They wanted to know if the Adninistration would approve a loan of $50,000,000 to the city of Paris and another loan of $30,000,000 to finance one of the French rail-ways. If the Administration approved, they would make the loan -the kind creatures. Afterwards, they would dump the securities into the Federal Reserve. That is, they would borrow the money from the Federal Reserve at 31/2 per cent, lend it to the dear French at 5% or 6 per cent, take a neat commission for negotiating the loan, and so perform another profitable deed of unselfish altruism in bleeding France. The Cabinet was divided upon this noble and unselfish proposal, but the hard-headed business objections of a Secretary not wholly unknown in Massachusetts finally overcame the favorable insistence of another Secretary who is equalwell known to gentlemen who have foodstuffs to sell in large

Raps On White House FOUR DISTRICT Pres. Wilson

"I want to see President Wil-n," Peter S. Speicis, a native Russia, asked of White House guards today saying that he had some advice to give him and to ask of him.

a-borning. The only reason for mentioning this nice little attempted raid on the Federal Reserve is to emphasize the fact that nothing escapes the ardent attentions of this International Banking crowd, and that even their intense interest in put ting through this treaty with their London and Tokyo allies does not hinder them from stepping aside to do a job of patriotic and charitable pocket-picking.

Some good people do not believe that these treaties are a job of the international bankers. Well, they are, just the same. And here is a little inside information that is only

The funding commission has already got so far, in private consultation, as to agree that England will finally pay us what she owes us, and that none of the rest of them will ever pay us a cent. That is to say, England will pay if she can. And if she cannot, then the international bankers, who hold billions of securities, will stand to lose about all the profits of their 100 per cent patriotism.

Now, then, the British Empire was never in such desperate straits as it is this day. Not in all its his ory. The one reason that England was so eager to patch up some kind of compromise with Ireland, and get its troops out of Ireland, was to have those troops to send to India Some of them are in India now Others are on their way.

The French are actively stirring up the Mohammedan world against England, with the object of so weakening England in Asia that she can offer no effective opposi tion to the French design of setting up a military empire over the con-tinent of Europe. For that is ex-actly what Poincare, an arch-chavinist and imperialist, proposes Naturally, the international bank ers are deeply interested in seeing England maintain her Asiatic em pire and her occupation of Constan tinople, which dominates Russia's trade outlet to the sea, and this reaty of alliance which will be voted upon Friday is the last prop of England's dominion in Asia, and the last hope of the international barkers, who have staked their all on England's continued supremacy over the seas and the trade of the world.

As it goes with England's political power, so it goes with Eng-land's financial power to pay the billions she owes the international bankers. And that is why the international bankers and their counel and their political tools are all working night and day to put our money and our strength at the command of England. You see the point, don't you?

It would be a good thing if you used the telegraph wires to let your Senators know that you do see it—and that you won't forget it next election day, either.

When I want to laugh, I turn over the files of the papers printed during the war period and read some of the fervent editorials and the more fervent oratorical catfits of those days of supreme silliness. Most amusing of all are the solemn assurances, then fashionably copied from Wodrow Wilson's rhapsodies, that when wicked Germany had been beaten and chained, secret diplomacy and militarism and all those vicious deviltries would disappear. Germany was beaten and is certainly chainedand look at Europe.

Every practice of secret diplomacy, every deviltry of intrigue and militarism is being repeated on a magnified scale. The victors are more quarrelsome and more greedy than the vanquished were ever accused of being. There are more soldiers under arms and eating the bread and consuming the production of the working masses than there were before the war. The Asiatic world is stirred from center to circumference by the plots and intrigues of the two principal victor powers. Nothing can prevent another war, when intrigue gives place to blows over the final disposition of the spoils of the vanquished. The stage is all set, right under the eyes of all who have eyes to see and who have brains enough to learn from the invariable lessons of the past what to expect in the future.

Into this welter of secret diplo-macy, suspicion, greed, hatred, ra-pacity, and every other vile practice and emotion that we went to war with the ridiculous expectation of abolishing, the cunning Balfour and the equally cunning Root have planned to thrust again our riches and our strength. Not for America's sake. Not a bit of it. But for the sake of England and the big bankers. The man who cannot see that may not natural fool, but he certainly is childishly ignorant of the ways of politics and diplomacy and high

Our big, strong, good-natured, rich America is being sold out by these cunning financiers and their foreign allies and domestic

Announcing—an exclusive affiliation with the makers of the famous Kingly Trousers

It is our belief that if we can save a man the price of a suit today, we'll be selling him one later on-when he needs it.

With this in mind, we have pleasure in announcing that we have recently taken on the well-known brand of Kingly Trousers, a make nationally known not alone for the quality of its merchandise but for the vast variety of its fabrics.

Many odd trousers lines are confined to hard finishes of cloth; the Kingly line is committed to all finishes and all cloths: hard and soft; worsteds or serges; cheviots or tweeds; herringbones or plaids; pencil stripes or what-not. It is a trouser line of suit fabrics—not a line of trouser fabrics only.
